

GODALMING UNITED CHURCH
(Methodist & United Reformed)

SERVICE FOR SUNDAY JUNE 3rd 2018 and notices for the coming week

Our second hymn today is written by the prolific, modern, Scottish hymn writer John L. (Lamberton) Bell and his colleague Graham Maule. It is very much a hymn for today, explained by Bell's background and beliefs.

John Bell was born in Kilmarnock in 1949 and is a Scottish hymn writer and Church of Scotland minister. He is a member of the Iona Community and a former student activist, elected in 1974 President of the Students' Representative Council at Glasgow University, a significant development as it was the start of a few years control by the left wing of the SRC. In 1977 he was elected Rector of Glasgow University, part of a trend for student rectors at that time (which included Gordon Brown at Edinburgh University).

Bell is concerned with the renewal of congregational worship at the grass root level. At the Iona Community he and Graham Maule realised how alien in character for some people were the traditional, denominational hymnals. They knew some new hymns were needed. There was nothing that dealt with unemployment, nothing that dealt with living in a multicultural society and feeling disenfranchised. There was nothing about child abuse, nothing that reflected concern for the developing world, nothing that helped us to see ourselves as brothers and sisters to those who are suffering from poverty or persecution.

Bell's next stage was to try to put this theology into verse, knowing that while people often forget what they hear preached, they remember what they sing. So some of their songs are scripturally based and bring to life passages that we have all read, known and spoken about time after time and in which we discover a new insight. Others are songs trying to express the aspirations of people or the plight of people that hymnody does not normally deal with.
